

It is ridiculous that the Consumer Banking Association wants to weaken this option, which seems to be working quite well, perhaps too well for their liking. I'm not sure what it is, but I can only imagine that the CBA must have something to gain by attempting to minimize consumers' privacy. Please stand behind the citizens in this case and protect the option and right to not be bothered by nagging and pestering telemarketers in our homes.